f Poco meno mosso.

By the side of me, the immor - tal Pan Lies the sweetest thing of the sea, In her gown of brine, With her breast to mine, And her drownd dark hair lies she! And her eyes that have look'd on the fathom-y_ weed, So mournful are fix'd on me: "I am thy slave, O

galsworthy

Mas - ter, O Pan, And ne - ver shall more be — free!"

Allegro risoluto.

But her smile, like the wine - red, — sha - dowy sea, When the day slides past and down, By the gods, it is ten - der death to me, In its wa - ters dark I — drown!

O slave of mine! Thou mys - te - ry of smi - ling depths, I drown! —
